Type and level of studies Basic academic three-year studies Course title Lecturer (for lectures) Mian Cvetković, PhD Academic/Associate (for other forms o Mian Cvetković, PhD Academic/Associate (for other forms o Mian Cvetković, PhD Academic/Associate (for other forms o Mian Cvetković, PhD Number of ECTS 4 (Course status (mandatory)optional) The student should pass the prescribed number of exams required for attending the VI semester. The aim of the subject is that the presented material, its verification in practice and permanent consultation of professional literature among students, create a clear picture of the importance of summer activities in atture, as well as the vertical and practical training of students, as future teachers of physical education, to independently and creatively realize the summer campus teaching, with particular emphasis on the activities on and in water. Outcomeof the course Realization of the intended purpose. Syllabus Introduction to the basic types, definitions and significance of activities in nature. Addressing the place and the role of activities in nature in the physical education syllabus for pre-school institutions, primary and secondary schools and professional organizations and associations. Understanding the importance of conducting excursions, liking, camping, orientation competitions and other contents accessible to students of primary and secondary school education. Familiatrary with specific locations in our area suitable for carrying out activities in nature on and in water. Familiatrizing with the importance of information and propagands in the space of activities in anture on and in water. Familiatrizing with the optimal technique of moving or the ground: dangers in nature; food and staying overnight in nature. Mastering preventive measures and first aid in the field. Orientation in nature through improvised and standard means, phenomena and facilities. Familiarizing with the basics of meteorology, Familiarizing with the physical and mental preparat	Study program	mma	Pachalar with Hangura in Physical Education and Sport
Type and level of studies Basic academic three-year studies Course title SUMMER ACTIVITES IN NATURE ON AND IN WATER Academic/Associate for exercises) Milan Cvetković, PhD Academic/Associate for exercises) Academic/Associate for other forms of Milan Cvetković, PhD Academic/Associate for other forms of Milan Cvetković, PhD Number of ECTS Requirement The aim of the subject is that the presented material, its verification in practice and permanent consultation of professional illerature among students, create a clear picture of the importance of summer activities in nature, as well as theoretical and practical training of students, as future teachers of physical education, to independently and creatively realize the summer campus teaching, with particular emphasis on the activities on and in water. Outcomed the course Syllabus Introduction to the basic types, definitions and significance of activities in nature, Addressing the place and the role of activities in nature in the physical education, syllabus for pre-school institutions, primary and secondary schools and professional organizations and associations. Understanding the importance of conducting excursions, hiking, camping, orientation competitions and other contents accessible to students of primary and secondary school education. Familiarizing with specific locations in our area suitable for carrying out activities in nature in and in water. Familiarizing with the importance of information and propaganda in the space of activities in nature; organization of transportation of persons and equipment, personal and collective equipment necessary for a safe stay in nature. Familiarizing with the optimal technique of moving on the ground, dangers in nature; cod and staying overnight in nature. Mastering preventive measures and first aid in the feld. Orientation in nature through improvised and standard means, phenomena and facilities. Familiarizing with the basics of means and facilities of mature. Pothigin knowledge about the explaination of the te			Bachelor with Honours in Physical Education and Sport
Course title SUMMER ACTIVITIES IN NATURE ON AND IN WATER			Dania academia thuse year studies
Lacturer (for lectures) Malan Cvetković, PhD Academic/Associate (for exercises) Academic/Associate (for exercises) Macademic/Associate (for exercises) Macademic/Associate (for other forms of Milan Cvetković, PhD Academic/Associate (for other forms of Milan Cvetković, PhD The aim of the subject is that the presented material, its verification in practice and permanent consultation of professional interature among students, create a clear picture of the importance of summer activities in nature, as well as theoretical and practical training of students, as future teachers of physical education, to independently and creatively realize the summer campus teaching , with particular emphasis on the activities on and in water. Outcomed the course Realization of the intended purpose. Syllabus Introduction to the basic types, definitions and significance of activities in nature. Addressing the place and the role of activities in nature in the physical education syllabus for pre-school institutions, primary and secondary schools and professional organizations and associations. Understanding the importance of conducting excursions, hiking, camping, orientation competitions and other contents accessible to students of primary and secondary school education. Familiarizing with performance of information and propaganda in the space of activities in nature on and in water. Familiarizing with the importance of information and propaganda in the space of activities in nature; organization of transportation of persons and equipment, personal and collective equipment necessary for a safe stay in nature. Familiarizing with the optimal technique of moving on the ground; dangers in nature, Good and staying overnight in nature. Mastering preventive measures and first aid in the field. Orient
Academic/Associate (for other forms on Milan Cvetković, PhD Academic/Associate (for other forms on Milan Cvetković, PhD Numbor of ECTS 4 Course status (mandatoryloptional) Optional		lo ofuro o
Numbor of ECTS 4 (Course status (mandatory/optional) Optional
Number of ECTS A Course status (mandatoryloptional) Optional
The sulm of the subject is that the prescribed number of exams required for attending the VI semester. The aim of the subject is that the presented material, its verification in practice and permanent consultation of professional literature among students, create a clear picture of the importance of summer activities in nature, as well as theoretical and practical training of students, as future teachers of physical education, to independently and creatively realize the summer campus teaching, with particular emphasis on the activities on and in water. Outcome of the course Realization of the intended purpose. Syllabus Introduction to the basic types, definitions and significance of activities in nature. Addressing the place and the role of activities in nature in the physical education syllabus for pre-school institutions, primary and secondary school education. Familiarizing with specific locations in our area suitable for carrying out activities in nature on and in water. Familiarizing with the importance of information and propagand in the space of activities in nature; organization of transportation of persons and equipment; personal and collective equipment necessary for a safe stay in nature. Familiarizing with the optimal technique of moving on the ground; dangers in nature; food and staying overnight in nature. Mastering preventive measures and first aid in the field. Orlentation in nature through improvised and standard means, phenomena and facilities. Familiarizing with the physical and mental preparation needed to stay in nature in summer. Adopting knowledge about camping as a form of staying in nature (types and division); types and camp divisions in relation to the physical and mental preparation needed to stay in nature in summer. Adopting knowledge about camping as a form of staying in nature (types and division); types and camp divisions in relation to the types of fire pits; tent, as the basic residential unit necessary for staying in nature; improvised facilities and patents in nature; u
The aim of the subject is that the presented material, its verification in practice and permanent consultation of professional literature among students, create a clear picture of the importance of summer activities in nature, as well as theoretical and practical training of students, as future teachers of physical education, to independently and creatively realize the summer campus teaching, with particular emphasis on the activities on and in water. Outcomeof the course Realization of the intended purpose. Syllabus Introduction to the basic types, definitions and significance of activities in nature. Addressing the place and the role of activities in nature in the physical education syllabus for pre-school institutions, primary and secondary schools and professional organizations and associations. Understanding the importance of conducting excursions, hiking, camping, orientation competitions and other contents accessible to students of primary and secondary school education. Familiarizing with specific locations in our area suitable for carrying out activities in nature on and in water. Familiarizing with the importance of information and propaganda in the space of activities in nature; organization of transportation of persons and equipment; personal and collective equipment necessary for a safe stay in nature. Mastering preventive measures and first aid in the field. Orientation in nature through improvised and standard means, phenomena and facilities, Familiarizing with the basics of meteorology. Familiarizing with the physical and mental preparation needed to stay in nature; food and staying knowledge about camping as a form of staying in nature (types and division); types and camp divisions in relation to the content, location and age of students, optimal factors in the selection of a campsite location for teaching purposes; planning, organizing and selecting a camping team. Adopting knowledge about camping as a form of staying an selecting a camping team. Adopting knowledge about camping as an adva of professional literature among students, create a clear picture of the importance of summer activities in nature, as well as theoretical and practical training of students, as future teachers of physical education, to independently and creatively realize the summer campus teaching, with particular emphasis on the activities on and in water. Realization of the intended purpose.	Requirement		,
Purposed the course independently and creatively realize the summer campus teaching, with particular emphasis on the activities on and in water. Realization of the intended purpose. Syllabus Introduction to the basic types, definitions and significance of activities in nature. Addressing the place and the role of activities in nature in the physical education syllabus for pre-school institutions, primary and secondary schools and professional organizations and associations. Understanding the importance of conducting excursions, hiking, camping, orientation competitions and other contents accessible to students of primary and secondary school education. Familiarizing with specific locations in our area suitable for carrying out activities in nature on and in water. Familiarizing with the importance of information and propaganda in the space of activities in nature; organization of transportation of persons and equipment; personal and collective equipment necessary for a safe stay in nature. Mastering preventive measures and first aid in the field. Orientation in nature through improvised and standard means, phenomena and facilities. Familiarizing with the basics of meteorology. Familiarizing with the physical and mental preparation needed to stay in nature in summer. Adopting knowledge about camping as a form of staying in nature (types and division); types and camp divisions in relation to the content, location and age of students; optimal factors in the selection of a campsite location for teaching purposes; planning, organizing and selecting a camping team. Adopting knowledge about the selection of the terrain for the teaching camp and dividing the camp into zones (housing zone, food zone, sanitary zone and sports and recreation zone). Familiarizing with the basic rules of movement in nature; hiking facilities in the function of a safe stay in nature. Familiarizing with the selection of the camping is personal nature. Familiarizing with the contents of the basic campus syllabus; morning exercises; competi		,	·
Independently and creatively realize the summer campus teaching , with particular emphasis on the activities on and in water. Outcomed fite course Realization of the intended purpose. Realization of the intended purpose. Realization of the intended purpose. Introduction to the basic types, definitions and significance of activities in nature. Addressing the place and the role of activities in nature in the physical education syllabus for pre-school institutions, primary and secondary schools and professional organizations and associations. Understanding the importance of conducting excursions, hiking, camping, orientation competitions and other contents accessible to students of primary and secondary school education. Familiarizing with specific locations in our area suitable for carrying out activities in nature or and in water. Familiarizing with the importance of information and propaganda in the space of activities in nature, or and a staying overnight in nature. Addressing the optimal technique of moving on the ground; dangers in nature; food and staying overnight in nature. Mastering preventive measures and first aid in the field. Orientation in nature through improvised and standard means, phenomena and facilities. Familiarizing with the basics of meteorotogy. Familiarizing with the physical and mental preparation needed to stay in nature in summer. Adopting knowledge about camping as a form of staying in nature (types and division); types and camp divisions in relation to the content, location and age of students; optimal factors in the selection of a campsite location for teaching purposes; planning, organizing and selecting a camping team. Adopting knowledge about the selection of the terrain for the teaching camp and dividing the camp into zones (housing zone, food zone, sanitary zone and sports and recreation zone). Familiarizing with the basic rules of movement in nature; hiking facilities in the function of a safe stay in nature. Familiarizing with the warmless of free the Physical Education			· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·
Cutcomed the course Realization of the intended purpose. Syllabus Introduction to the basic types, definitions and significance of activities in nature. Addressing the place and the role of activities in nature in the physical education syllabus for pre-school institutions, primary and secondary schools and professional organizations and associations. Understanding importance of conducting excursions, hiking, camping, orientation competitions and other contents accessible to students of primary and secondary school education. Familiarizing with the importance of information and propaganda in the space of activities in nature; organization of transportation of persons and equipment; personal and collective equipment necessary for a safe stay in nature. Familiarizing with the optimal technique of moving on the ground; dangers in nature; food and staying overnight in nature. Mastering preventive measures and first aid in the field. Orientation in nature through improvised and standard means, phenomena and facilities. Familiarizing with the basics of meteorology. Familiarizing with the physical and mental preparation needed to stay in nature is summer. Adopting knowledge about camping as a form of staying in nature (types and division); types and camping knowledge about to reaching purposes; planning, organizing and selecting a camping team. Adopting knowledge about the selection of the terrain for the teaching camp and dividing the camp into zones (housing zone, food zone, sanitary zone and sports and recreation zone). Familiarizing with the basic rules of movement in nature; hiking facilities in the function of a safe stay in nature. Familiarizing with the camp into zones (housing zone, food zone, sanitary zone and sports and recreation zone). Familiarizing with the basic rules of movement in nature protection; role and significance of the pedagogue of physical culture in creating a proper relationship to nature; functions of national parks in the protection of nature and human heritage. Understanding the opt	D		, , ,
Outcome of the course Syllabus Introduction to the basic types, definitions and significance of activities in nature. Addressing the place and the role of activities in nature in the physical education syllabus for pre-school institutions, primary and secondary schools and professional organizations and associations. Understanding the importance of conducting excursions, hiking, camping, orientation competitions and other contents accessible to students of primary and secondary school education. Familiarizing with specific locations in our area suitable for carrying out activities in nature on and in water. Familiarizing with the importance of information and propaganda in the space of activities in nature, organization of transportation of persons and equipment; personal and collective equipment necessary for a safe stay in nature. Familiarizing with the optimal technique of moving on the ground; dangers in nature; food and staying overnight in nature. Mastering preventive measures and first aid in the field. Orientation in nature through improvised and standard means, phenomena and facilities. Familiarizing with the basics of meteorology. Familiarizing with the physical and mental preparation needed to stay in nature in summer. Adopting knowledge about campling as a form of staying in nature (types and division); types and camp divisions in relation to the content, location and age of students; optimal factors in the selection of a campsite location for teaching purposes; planning, organizing and selecting a camping team. Adopting knowledge about the selection of the terrain for the teaching camp and dividing the camp into zones (housing zone, food zone, sanitary zone and sports and recreation zone). Familiarizing with the basic rules of movement in nature; hiking facilities in the function of a safe stay in nature. Familiarizing with the camp into zones (housing zone, food zone, sanitary zone and sports and recreation zone). Familiarizing with the basic rules of movement in nature; hiking facilities in t	-		ly realize the summer campus teaching, with particular emphasis on the Realization of the intended purpose. Syllabus Introduction to the basic types, definitions and significance of activities in nature. Addressing the place and the role of activities in nature in the physical education syllabus for pre-school institutions, primary and secondary schools and professional organizations and associations. Understanding the importance of conducting excursions, hiking, camping, orientation competitions and other contents accessible to students of primary and secondary school education. Familiarizing with specific locations in our area suitable for carrying out activities in nature on and in water. Familiarizing with the importance of information and propaganda in the space of activities in nature; organization of transportation of persons and equipment; personal and collective equipment necessary for a safe stay in nature. Familiarizing with the optimal technique of moving on the ground; dangers in nature; food and standard means, phenomena and facilities. Familiarizing with the basics of meteorology. Familiarizing with the physical and mental preparation needed to stay in nature in summer. Adopting knowledge about the physical and mental preparation needed to stay in nature in summer. Adopting whowledge about the proposes; planning, organizing and selecting a camping team. Adopting knowledge about the selection of the terrain for the teaching camp and dividing the camp into zones (housing zone, food zone, sanitary zone and sports and recreation zone). Familiarizing with the basic rules of movement in nature; hiking facilities in the function of a safe stay in nature. Familiarizing with examples of field games on excursions and camping; use of fire in nature and the types of fire pits; tent, as the basic residential unit necessary for staying in nature; improvised facilities and patents in nature; using a knife and pioneer tools in nature. Ability to solve individuals kas from the Physical Education Syllabus for students (tours of cultural and historical monuments, natural phenomena,	the course	activities on and in water.
Realization of the intended purpose. Syllabus Introduction to the basic types, definitions and significance of activities in nature. Addressing the place and the role of activities in nature in the physical education syllabus for pre-school institutions, primary and secondary schools and professional organizations and associations. Understanding the importance of conducting excursions, hiking, camping, orientation competitions and other contents accessible to students of primary and secondary school education. Familiarizing with specific locations in our area suitable for carrying out activities in nature on and in water. Familiarizing with the importance of information and propaganda in the space of activities in nature; organization of transportation of persons and equipment; personal and collective equipment necessary for a safe stay in nature. Familiarizing with the optimal technique of moving on the ground; dangers in nature; food and standard means, phenomena and facilities. Familiarizing with the basics of meteorology. Familiarizing with the physical and mental preparation needed to stay in nature in summer. Adopting knowledge about the physical and mental preparation needed to stay in nature in summer. Adopting whowledge about the proposes; planning, organizing and selecting a camping team. Adopting knowledge about the selection of the terrain for the teaching camp and dividing the camp into zones (housing zone, food zone, sanitary zone and sports and recreation zone). Familiarizing with the basic rules of movement in nature; hiking facilities in the function of a safe stay in nature. Familiarizing with examples of field games on excursions and camping; use of fire in nature and the types of fire pits; tent, as the basic residential unit necessary for staying in nature; improvised facilities and patents in nature; using a knife and pioneer tools in nature. Ability to solve individuals kas from the Physical Education Syllabus for students (tours of cultural and historical monuments, natural phenomena,	Outcomeof
Introduction to the basic types, definitions and significance of activities in nature. Addressing the place and the role of activities in nature in the physical education syllabus for pre-school institutions, primary and secondary schools and professional organizations and associations. Understanding the importance of conducting excursions, hiking, camping, orientation competitions and other contents accessible to students of primary and secondary school education. Familiarizing with specific locations in our area suitable for carrying out activities in nature on and in water. Familiarizing with the importance of information and propaganda in the space of activities in nature; organization of transportation of persons and equipment; personal and collective equipment necessary for a safe stay in nature. Mastering preventive measures and first aid in the field. Orientation in nature through improvised and standard means, phenomena and facilities. Familiarizing with the basics of meteody. Familiarizing with the physical and mental preparation needed to stay in nature in summer. Adopting knowledge about camping as a form of staying in nature (types and division); types and camp divisions in relation to the content, location and age of students; optimal factors in the selection of a campstile location for teaching purposes; planning, organizing and selecting a camping team. Adopting knowledge about the selection of the terrain for the teaching camp and dividing the camp into zones (housing zone, food zone, sanitary zone and sports and recreation zone). Familiarizing with the basic rules of movement in nature, hiking facilities in the function of a safe stay in nature. Familiarizing with examples of field games on excursions and camping; use of fire in nature and patents in nature; using a knife and pioneer tools in nature. Ability to solve individual tasks from the Physical Education Syllabus for students (tours of cultural and historical monuments, natural phenomena, flora and fatural). Understanding the importanc		Realization of the intended	purpose
Introduction to the basic types, definitions and significance of activities in nature. Addressing the place and the role of activities in nature in the physical education syllabus for pre-school institutions, primary and secondary schools and professional organizations and associations. Understanding the importance of conducting excursions, hiking, camping, orientation competitions and other contents accessible to students of primary and secondary school education. Familiarizing with specific locations in our area suitable for carrying out activities in nature on and in water. Familiarizing with the importance of information and propaganda in the space of activities in nature; organization of transportation of persons and equipment; personal and collective equipment necessary for a safe stay in nature. Familiarizing with the optimal technique of moving on the ground; dangers in nature; food and staying overnight in nature. Mastering preventive measures and first aid in the field. Orientation in nature through improvised and standard means, phenomena and facilities. Familiarizing with the basics of meteorology. Familiarizing with the physical and mental preparation needed to stay in nature in summer. Adopting knowledge about camping as a form of staying in nature (types and division); types and camp divisions in relation to the content, location and age of students; optimal factors in the selection of a campsite location for teaching purposes; planning, organizing and selecting a camping team. Adopting knowledge about the selection of the terrain for the teaching camp and dividing the camp into zones (housing zone, food zone, sanitary zone and sports and recreation zone). Familiarizing with the basic residential unit necessary for staying in nature; improvised facilities and patents in nature; using a knife and pioneer tools in nature. Ability to solve individual tasks from the Physical Education Syllabus for students (tours of cultural and historical monuments, natural phenomena, flora and fauna). Understandin		realization of the interlace	purpose.
the role of activities in nature in the physical education syllabus for pre-school institutions, primary and secondary schools and professional organizations and associations. Understanding the importance of conducting excursions, hiking, camping, orientation competitions and other contents accessible to students of primary and secondary school education. Familiarizing with specific locations in our area suitable for carrying out activities in nature on and in water. Familiarizing with the importance of information and propaganda in the space of activities in nature, organization of transportation of persons and equipment; personal and collective equipment necessary for a safe stay in nature. Familiarizing with the optimal technique of moving on the ground; dangers in nature; food and staying overnight in nature. Mastering preventive measures and first aid in the field. Orientation in nature through improvised and standard means, phenomena and facilities. Familiarizing with the basics of meteorology. Familiarizing with the physical and mental preparation needed to stay in nature in summer. Adopting knowledge about camping as a form of staying in nature (types and division); types and camp divisions in relation to the content, location and age of students; optimal factors in the selection of a campsite location for teaching purposes; planning, organizing and selecting a camping team. Adopting knowledge about the selection of the terrain for the teaching camp and dividing the camp into zones (housing zone, food zone, sanitary zone and sports and recreation zone). Familiarizing with the basic rules of movement in nature; hiking facilities in the function of a safe stay in nature; using a knife and pioneer tools in nature. Ability to solve individual tasks from the Physical Education Syllabus for students (tours of cultural and historical moments, natural phenomena, flora and fauna). Understanding the importance of nature protection; role and significance of the pedagogue of physical culture in creating a proper r	Oynabas nature. Familiarizing with examples of field games on excursions and camping; use of fire in nature and the types of fire pits; tent, as the basic residential unit necessary for staying in nature; improvised facilities and patents in nature; using a knife and pioneer tools in nature. Ability to solve individual tasks from the Physical Education Syllabus for students (tours of cultural and historical monuments, natural phenomena, flora and fauna). Understanding the importance of nature protection; role and significance of the pedagogue of physical culture in creating a proper relationship to nature; functions of national parks in the protection of nature and human heritage. Understanding the optimal functioning of the teaching camp (selection of work and professional team, daily plans and activity schedules); obligations and duties of persons on duty. Familiarizing with the contents of the basic campus syllabus; morning exercises; competitions of sports-recreational character on camping; evening programmes on camping; joint gatherings (assemblies) in the function of organizing, information and checks. Mastering water activities without props: applied swimming, swimming in difficult conditions, swimming in the long run, preparation of the terrain for outdoor swimming training, rescue activities, water jumps, water games without props. Mastering water activities with props: water games with equipment, applied rowing in national and tourist vessels, rowing galleys, canoes and kayaks. Mastering the basics of nautics: riding a motorboat, windsurfing, water skiing, rafting and rafting in fast waters. Mastering activities under water: free diving (with and without basic diving equipment), basics of diving with a bottle and diving equipment. Familiarizing with the basics of sport fishing. Mastering the provision of first aid.		secondary schools and professional organizations and associations. Understanding the importance of conducting excursions, hiking, camping, orientation competitions and other contents accessible to students of primary and secondary school education. Familiarizing with specific locations in our area suitable for carrying out activities in nature on and in water. Familiarizing with the importance of information and propaganda in the space of activities in nature; organization of transportation of persons and equipment; personal and collective equipment necessary for a safe stay in nature. Familiarizing with the optimal technique of moving on the ground; dangers in nature; food and staying overnight in nature. Mastering preventive measures and first aid in the field. Orientation in nature through improvised and standard means, phenomena and facilities. Familiarizing with the basics of meteorology. Familiarizing with the physical and mental preparation needed to stay in nature in summer. Adopting knowledge about camping as a form of staying in nature (types and division); types and camp divisions in relation to the content, location and age of students; optimal factors in the selection of a campsite location for teaching purposes; planning, organizing and selecting a camping team. Adopting knowledge about the selection of the terrain for the teaching camp and dividing the camp into zones (housing zone, food zone, sanitary Literature 1 Adison, G. (2002). Splavarenje. Zagreb: Znanje.Miletić, V.K. (2011). Izlaz iza otvorenih vrata: aktivnosti u	teaching (exercises, other forms of teaching, study research work) Literature	nature. Familiarizing with e types of fire pits; tent, as the patents in nature; using a lead of Physical Education Syllabut flora and fauna). Understare pedagogue of physical cult protection of nature and hur (selection of work and professons on duty. Familiariz competitions of sports-recongatherings (assemblies) in without props: applied swinth terrain for outdoor swinth terrain for outdoor swinth terrain for outdoor swinth astering water activities we wessels, rowing galleys, call windsurfing, water skiing, re (with and without basic dividential patential for the basic dividential for the patential for the swindsurfing, water skiing, re (with and without basic dividential for the patential for the pate	examples of field games on excursions and camping; use of fire in nature and the see basic residential unit necessary for staying in nature; improvised facilities and knife and pioneer tools in nature. Ability to solve individual tasks from the see for students (tours of cultural and historical monuments, natural phenomena, anding the importance of nature protection; role and significance of the ure in creating a proper relationship to nature; functions of national parks in the aman heritage. Understanding the optimal functioning of the teaching camp resional team, daily plans and activity schedules); obligations and duties of sing with the contents of the basic campus syllabus; morning exercises; reational character on camping; evening programmes on camping; joint the function of organizing, information and checks. Mastering water activities maining, swimming in difficult conditions, swimming in the long run, preparation of aming training, rescue activities, water jumps, water games without props. With props: water games with equipment, applied rowing in national and tourist moes and kayaks. Mastering the basics of nautics: riding a motorboat, afting and rafting in fast waters. Mastering activities under water: free diving ang equipment), basics of diving with a bottle and diving equipment.

2	2 American Canoe Association, Dillon, P. & Oyen, J. (2008). Canoeing. Champaign, IL: Human Kinetics.
3	Miletić, V.K. (2011). Izlaz iza otvorenih vrata: aktivnosti u prirodi, filozofija modernog života. Belgrade: Alkaprint.
4	Redmond, K., Foran, A. & Dwyer, S. (2010). Quality lessons plans for outdoor education. Champaign, IL: Human Kinetics.
5	Cvetković, M. (2012). Aktivnosti u prirodi. Novi Sad: Faculty of Sport and Physical Education.
Number of cla	sses per we	ek during the	e semester/trimester/year
Lectures	Exercises	of teaching	Study research	Other classes
1	3		-
Methodsofte aching Lectures, exercises, practical preliminary exam, written examination, consultations.
Knowledge assessment (maximum number of points 100)
Pre-exam obligations		points	Final exam	points
activities during lectures		15	written exam	30
practical classes			oral exam
preliminary exam		30
seminars		10				